Check out 30 of the coolest Eagle Scout letters I've seen

What do President Barack Obama, New York Giants head coach Tom Coughlin, author Homer Hickam, actor Chuck Norris, and NBA legend Shaquille O'Neal all have in common?

No, they're not the five famous people I'd invite to a fantasy dinner party — though that would be interesting.

In fact, these men are among the five famous folks who have mailed congratulatory letters to new Eagle Scouts. Last month, I asked our Facebook friends to send me their favorite Eagle letters.

After sorting through about a hundred impressive submissions, I picked my 30 favorites, removed the Eagle's last name and address, and will share them with you.

The letter-writers include names you know in the worlds of politics, entertainment, and sports. And they prove that it's worth sending a request for a letter to just about anybody — all they can do is say no.

A final note: One of the letters was from the late Sen. Daniel Inouye, the highest-ranking Asian American politician in U.S. history. The letter was likely one of the last ones signed by Sen. Inouye before his death in December 2012.

Let's get to the letters:

Dear Anthony,

I was recently informed of your outstanding accomplishment, earning the rank of Eagle Scout.

You have demonstrated the highest qualities of leadership and moral character in your pursuit and attainment of the Eagle Scout Rank. You can be proud of your start as a future leader.

Naval officers, aviators and crew are highly disciplined individuals who abide by a code of ethics similar to those of the Boy Scouts: Honor, Courage and Commitment. They must be prepared at all times to perform their duty to support and defend the Constitution of the United States against all enemies.

As you progress through school, remember all the challenges met and merit badges earned toward receiving this prestigious award. Maintain the skills, values, and self-confidence instilled in you by the Boy Scouts, for these qualities will serve you well in your quest for greater service to your family and community.

Good luck in your future endeavors, and I wish you much success.

Sincerely,

T.A. Frosch

Dear Wyatt:

Congratulations upon achieving the rank of Eagle Scout. You are among a select few that have achieved this award, recognizing the characteristics of initiative, courage, resourcefulness and leadership.

Since 1910, the Boy Scouts of America have helped mold young men in a disciplined environment, teaching the fundamental principles of nature conservation and basic survival skills. By achieving the rank of Eagle Scout you have demonstrated exemplary discipline, talent and ingenuity. The lessons you have learned from scouting will serve you well throughout your life.

Congratulations again and best wishes for your future endeavors.

Sincerely,

Chris Christie

Dear Wyatt:

On behalf of the New York Giants, I would like to congratulate you upon your achievement in attaining the high honor of Eagle Scout. Your accomplishment is something for which you and your family can be proud of for the rest of your life.

Life is a series of challenges and by becoming an Eagle Scout you have given yourself a great start toward overcoming other challenges. You have proven that goal setting, hard work, and commitment will be rewarded. Remember to apply that lesson to everything you do. In football, we teach those same principles; set goals, be committed, work hard and be a team player. It is by following these rules that you can become a champion in life.

Continued success to you in school, scouting and in all your endeavors. It is young people like you who make the future promising for our country.

Sincerely,

THE SECRETARY OF EDUCATION
WASHINGTON

Congratulations on attaining the rank of Eagle Scout, the Boy Scouts of America's highest rank. Your willingness to take upon yourself the obligations and responsibilities of an Eagle Scout comes at an important time in our nation's history.

As President Barack Obama said in his inaugural address, "What is required of us now is a new era of responsibility—a recognition on the part of every American that we have duties to ourselves, our nation and the world; duties that we do not grudgingly accept, but rather seize gladly, firm in the knowledge that there is nothing so satisfying to the spirit, so defining of our character than giving our all to a difficult task." I commend you on the hard work, dedication and sheer determination that enabled you to attain the distinction of the Eagle rank. May the honor of this award inspire you to a lifetime of service to your fellow citizens and our great country.

Best wishes for continued success in your future endeavors.

Dear Anthony,

Congratulations on earning the rank of Eagle Scout! This significant accomplishment is a testament to your remarkable commitment and leadership skills, and places you among the members of a very distinguished group of Boy Scouts. I am sure your family, friends, and mentors are very proud of you!

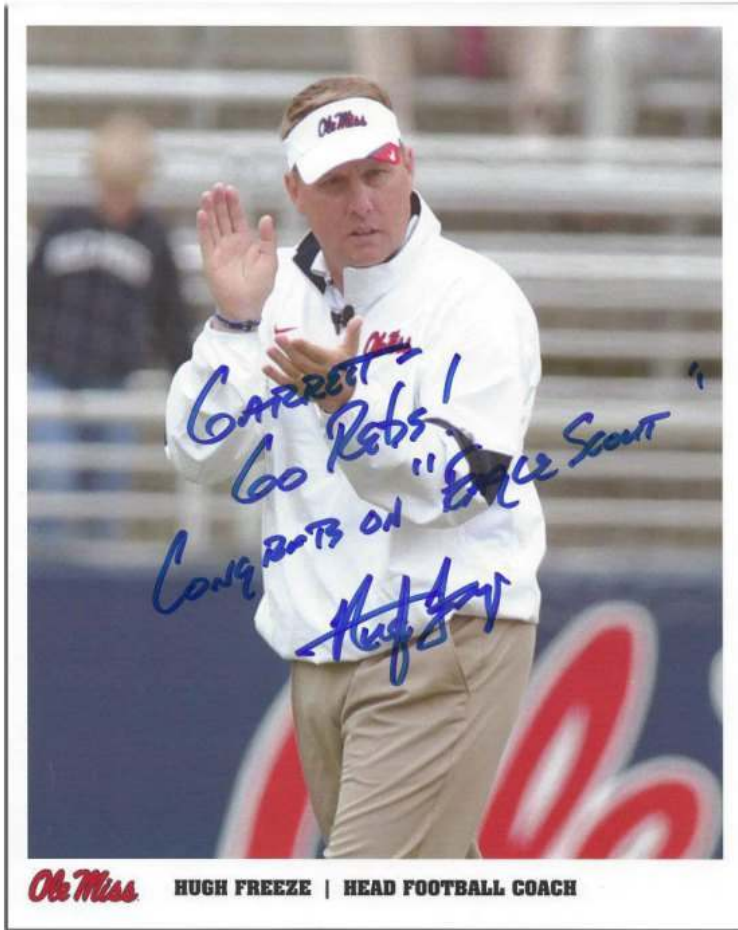

I have always believed that understanding yourself and what you want to achieve are keys to living a successful life. On your "trail to Eagle," you, undoubtedly, have learned a great deal about yourself. As you earned each of your merit badges, that understanding continued to grow and will serve you well as you set goals and priorities to accomplish the things you believe in.

I also believe that making a positive difference in the lives of others is the truest expression of leadership. Your service to your community already has made the world a better place, and the hard work, strong values, follow-through attitude, and compassion for others that you displayed along this journey have prepared you for a meaningful and exemplary life.

On behalf of all the men and women of Ford Motor Company, I extend best wishes to you on your special day and for your continued success as a leader throughout your life.

Sincerely,

Dear Anthony:

Congratulation on becoming an Eagle Scout!

I remember well the evening of July 19th 1946 when my Eagle Award was presented to me in Tampa, Florida. I was 14 years old and up to this point, the occasion was one of the most memorable events in my life. The lessons learned on my way to becoming an Eagle Scout have helped me throughout my entire career.

Wear your Eagle badge proudly Anthony, and always remember the Scouts Motto, "Be Prepared".

Scouting has been one of my most important ingredients for my Drag Racing success! Again, Anthony, Congratulation on a job well done! I am so proud of the project you chose for your VFW Post and I know you were a blessing to these veterans.

God Bless you, Anthony,

Dear Eagle Scout Bradley

Congratulations to you upon your recent prodigious achievement of earning the Eagle Scout rank in the Boy Scouts of America. Your dedication to the pursuit of excellence, coupled with the rocket boy spirit of adventure and perseverance in the face of obstacles, has made this outstanding achievement possible.

As O'Dell said in Rocket Boys / October Sky, "A rocket won't fly unless somebody lights the fuse." His was a literal meaning but he was also voicing an important idea. Nothing will happen unless someone takes the initiative to make it so. That's what you have done.

My dear teacher Miss Riley said to me once long ago, "All I've done is give you a book. You have to have the courage to learn what's inside it." She was referring to an advanced text on rocketry, which required an understanding of higher mathematics quite beyond me at the time. She was confident, however, that her challenge to me would be enough to make me try to learn. She was right. I studied, I learned, I worked hard, and I succeeded. You have done the same and I am proud of you.

Congratulations again, and best wishes for the future. Remember, if you don't have dreams, they can't come true. Aim High!

Sincerely,

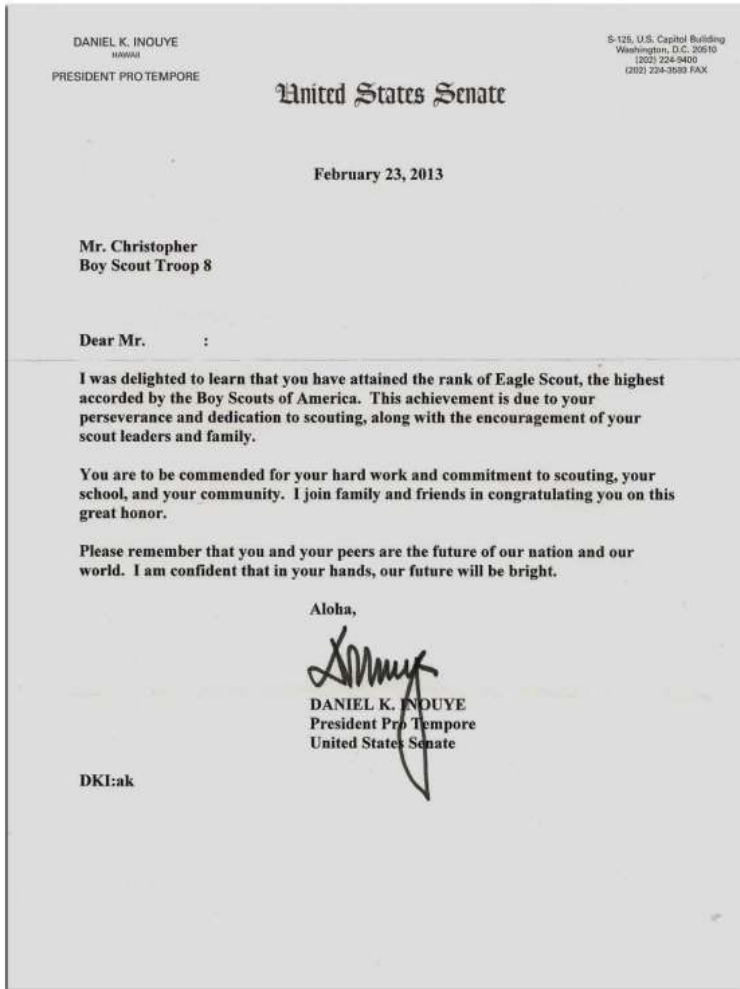

Homer Hickam

Dear Eagle Scout Garrett:

It is my understanding that you have completed all of the requirements necessary to be awarded the rank of Eagle Scout by constructing a storage shed at Jack Frost Elementary School. Congratulations on your accomplishment.

Through setting goals, being dedicated, working hard and making sacrifices you were able to meet the requirements and objectives necessary to receive this highest of honor and rank. Your selfless giving and actions are appreciated by many in your community and serves as a model to us all. True rewards are received when you serve, give and sacrifice for others.

Again, congratulations on receiving this highest honor.

Dear Alex,

I am writing to congratulate you on your outstanding achievement in gaining the highest award of the Boy Scouts of America – the Eagle Scout. The qualities that the Eagle represents, as the national emblem of the United States (and the emblem of the Royal Air Force), includes strength, keen vision and knowledge. In achieving this award you have demonstrated your mental and physical agility, your adaptability and your capability – all values that are dear to the Royal Air Force.

I was particularly impressed to learn of your efforts to support the Special Olympics, which characterises your willingness and commitment to help others. You can take justifiable pride in being recognised as an Eagle Scout and I would like to take this opportunity to wish you all the very best for your continued success in the future.

With best wishes,

*Yours sincerely,
Glenn Torpy*

Dear Michael:

Congratulations on earning the rank of Eagle Scout. Your hard work, determination, and dedication were factors in achieving the highest award that can be earned in the Boy Scouts. These attributes are sure signs of a winner, and that is something you can certainly take great pride in.

Make sure to set your future goals as high, and you will accomplish all that you set out to do.

Keep up the good work!

Dear Crawford

Back in 1977, I got a letter from The President of the United States, congratulating me on becoming an Eagle Scout. It was printed on thick, creamy paper, and had the presidential seal stamped on the bottom, right next to Gerald Ford's name. Impressive. However, as I studied the president's photocopied signature, and considered the fact that I had never even met the man, I came to the conclusion that I was holding a Form Letter.

Don't get me wrong; it was a nice gesture, but I decided then and there, that if I ever found myself in the position of sending out hundreds of identical letters to Eagle Scouts everywhere, I wouldn't pretend to fool them into thinking they had received a heartfelt expression of unique sentiment. After all, a Scout is Trustworthy, whether he goes on to become the President of the United States or the host of a show on cable television. Which is why I am compelled to admit that I did not write this letter specifically for you. I disclose this deliberately, in the hope that doing so will imbue my well wishes with a measure of credibility greater than those of any former president. And even though many Eagle Scouts have received this exact letter, you will notice that the time has been taken to scribble your name into the blanks provided, a personal touch not included in President Ford's Form Letter, or to my knowledge, any correspondence originating from the current leader of the free world.

Having said all that Crawford, I will now offer my sincere congratulations for what you've achieved.

As you may have heard, the Eagle Award is kind of a big deal. Most of the guys in my old troop bailed out around Star or First Class. You stuck it out, and that makes you special. But don't get cocky, Crawford. Contrary to what many have told you, this award will NOT change the way the world looks at you. Sorry, but it's true. The vast majority of people you're going to meet in life aren't going to care about what you've accomplished in The Boy Scouts, and you know what? That's fine. Because while others may benefit from being around the type of adult you might become, the only person that will ever be truly affected by what you have accomplished, is Crawford.

Remember this always. The Eagle Award comes with no magic power or influence. It is merely a reminder that you have succeeded in one area where most others have failed. That could be the start of a very positive pattern. Or, it could be something else. I knew a guy who got his Eagle a couple years before me. His chest literally puffed up, and never returned to its normal size. He started walking around like the world owed him a living. His Dad got him into a decent school, and when he finally graduated, he actually carried his degree in his pocket - took it to job interviews, and showed it around like it was his first merit badge. Today, he is a miserable, pompous, pain in the butt with no friends, two ex-wives, and a job he hates. Always complaining about this or that. He still has an old football trophy on his mantle, next to his diploma, and an identical copy of that same form letter from Gerald Ford, framed on his desk, congratulating him for something he did 30 years ago.

Don't be that guy. Don't wait for the world to acknowledge your accomplishments. By all means, take pride in what you've done, but don't let it go to your head. When you're finished with Scouting, donate your uniform to The Salvation Army. Fold up your sash and stow it away somewhere private, with all the other tokens of what you've done so far. Then, roll up your sleeves, get out in the world, and put what you've learned to use.

Live the Scout Law. Remember the Scout Oath. Be unique. And don't forget to have fun. Otherwise, Crawford, you'll wind up like most everybody else - a human form letter.

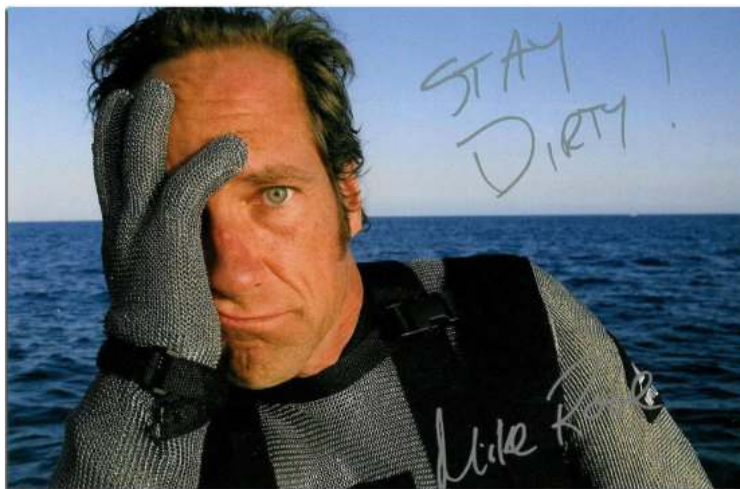

Remember, a Scout is clean, but not afraid to get dirty,

Mike Rowe

Dear Eagle Scout,

Congratulations on achieving the rank of Eagle Scout! One of the proudest moments of my life was when I became an Eagle Scout. It's a high goal and it's achievable. I know how proud you must be feeling.

I became a movie director because of the photography merit badge. I shot a four minute western called "Gunsmog" to qualify for the merit badge and it really changed my entire life. I used everybody in my troop as actors. The film cost $20. We couldn't afford horses so we all ran during the chase scene. Movie making started as a hobby and became a profession.

The merit badge program is so specific and each badge is so eclectic that studying for each one is almost like studying for a vocation. Scouting might give you some suggestion of the road you might want to travel for the rest of your life. That's what Scouting did for me.

Congratulations again on this remarkable achievement.

All my best,

P.O. Box 8520 Universal City California 91608

Dear Erik

Hey there, guy. We heard through the grapevine that you're an Eagle Scout now. That's great. It's a good thing there are fellas like you out there keeping all our collective hatches battened down. Regarding hatches, we are somewhat lax. In fact, we haven't sent the interns to buy toilet paper for a week...

Seriously though, you've done a pretty incredible thing. Wikipedia told us all the things you had to do to get where you are, and it reads like a list of things our mothers wish we had done instead of getting really good at Halo 3. With them, we've settled on agreeing to disagree.

Even though we're a bit jealous, we thought we'd give you a text-based pat on the back; we thought we'd commend you. So, way to go, Erik, we salute you. You've done us (and your mamma) proud.

This is a great compendium of letters.

I was particular touched by (and jealous of..) the letter from Homer Hickam. As a Wood Badger (and now staffer), that movie has extra special significance, to me, and I would have loved an opportunity to get a letter from Homer when I earned my Eagle Scout award in 1986. I've seen interviews with him and think he is a great example of what Eagles (and all Scouts) should strive for.

I was touched by the letter from the late Sen. Daniel Inouye, who I always thought was a very interesting, astue and articulate man who represented our citizenry well during his time on this planet.

I was amused, entertained and a bit disappointed at Mike Rowe's letter. I get what he meant (I got a form letter from Gerald Ford too...) and I appreciate his position, but as a 44 year old, I probably receive that letter better now then I would have at 14-18. That being said, I still appreciate Mike's interest in at least sending it (along with a 8x10 glossy...which I'm not sure was actually necessary...).

I was pleasantly surprised at the letter from Spike Entertainment – I didn't see that one coming. Not that I have any objections to Spike, but I had suspected that Spike was not particularly interested in what would be considered the less flagrant and/or 'out there' modus operandi of Scouts. Goes to show that you can't judge a book...

I was also interested to see the letter from the RAF and the personal alignment of it. It was nice to see a foreign military representative respect and appreciate a youth in our country.

I was honored to have received letters from Presidents Ford, Carter and Reagan as well as my senators, several members of congress and Pope John Paul II, among others. It's a pleasure to see a wider variety in these letters, including more socially-aligned representation.

I noticed that as well, Katie. Many writers post-date their letters for the actual date of the court of honor, and I can only guess that was the case here.

How many requests for letters do you think the President, any President, gets? Not to belittle Mr. Rowe's work, but I kinda rather the President spend his day leading the free world and being Commander in Chief than signing congratulatory letters. Remember the "do your duty to . . . my country. . ." part of the Scout Oath? Part of that is not taking cheap shots at our government officials.

I find the letter from Steven Spielberg very interesting in how he states that he is a proud Eagle Scout. As a Staff member at the 1989 BSA Jamboree at Ft AP Hill VA, he was given the National Eagle Scout award for developing the Cinematography MB and also for the wonderful Opening Ceremonies. I was sickened a few years later when he returned his Eagle Scout badge to National in protest over the BSA policy over gay leaders. I will not ever again see a Spielberg movie including LINCOLN.

My son received many Eagle letters some from the ones above although I was shocked to see one here from Myth Busters. I contacted and wrote to the show and was told they didn't deal with Eagle Scouts or Scouting period. They didn't have time to write a letter to a Eagle. It looks as though they have changed their minds. Good going guys! These letters mean ALOT to each scout that receives them. I am currently working on my second son's Eagle Ceremony. I hope we recieve the same welcoming as we did before with so many wonderful letters. Thanks to all who participate in congratulating these young men. Your support is greatly appreciated.
